1. Text

Claire: Hello, Jenny! I haven't seen you for weeks! How are you getting on?

Jenny: Fine, thank you. I'm just doing a bit of shopping in the nick of time before I leave.

Claire: Oh, that's nice. Where are you going?

Jenny: I'm going to Spain with my husband. We had been considering going somewhere for months. And then, one afternoon, Robert came home saying he had booked something. Imagine my surprise. It was all rather quick. I was told we would be leaving in a few days. That's definitely the biggest disadvantage of going somewhere last minute. I wish I had more time for all of this.

Claire: Yes, you're absolutely right. There's no point in doing the packing with too much haste, is there? How sad. I would rather we met on a different occasion. And there's that new café in Harris Street. I really wanted to have a look inside. You're not going to have much time now, are you?

Jenny: Unfortunately not, I'm afraid. And that's not everything. Have you heard the weather forecast?

Claire: No, I haven't. What is the weather supposed to be like in the following days?

Jenny: Well, they say there's going to be a heatwave all over the Europe. I can't put up with this hot weather we have got here any more and the thought of going somewhere even hotter... I've started thinking whether it's worth travelling south at all.

Claire: Oh, I wouldn't worry too much if I were you. There's nothing wrong with a holiday by the sea. You just have to be looking forward to lying on a deckchair on the beach with some cold drinks your husband will be serving.

Jenny: Hmm... Maybe you're right. That idea isn't bad at all, you know.
